Standard terms & conditions

- Logistics operations in Greenland are sometimes difficult due to the Arctic weather conditions. The logistics staff at GINR will solely judge and decide the operational and safety state of the actual weather conditions. In the event that weather conditions prevent an agreed logistics operation, GINR will aim to deliver the desired service as soon as possible (next open booking possibility). No other compensations will be given. If the customer decides to cancel his operation due to such delays, then he will not be charged for such a cancellation.

- GINR is not able to undertake housing of customer equipment within or between field seasons.
- All special equipment and consumables - including weapons, clothing, equipment for communication, navigation and camping - necessary to carry out a project at GINR must be provided by the individual project itself.
- GINR will normally not charge services before they are completed. However, in all cases, GINR reserves the right to charge the full amount of any given service immediately after a booking has been agreed.
- All types of bookings may be cancelled by the customer free of charge until 7 calendar days before delivery of the booked service. If the customer cancels his booking later than 7 calendar days before completion – or does not show up at all at the time agreed - GINR reserves the right to charge the full amount of the service booked.
